overview

The hotel is situated in the most important developing area in Zurich. In just the past few decades, it's become a home to creatives, clubs and international companies. The character of the quarter is characterised by a mixture of former industrial sites and new developments. Zurich West is home to the tallest building and largest cinema complex in Switzerland, as well as the secondary stage of the Schauspielhaus Zurich and the Zurich University of the Arts. Galleries, small theatres, bars and clubs make Zürich West the cultural melting pot and trend quarter of the city. As part of the Hard Turm Park area, the 25hours Hotel Zürich West forms a dynamic unit with other services and restaurants. Tram line 4 connects directly with the main train station, the old town and the lake.

The 25hours Hotel Zürich West was developed with the team of Alfredo Häberli Design Development. "My job for the Zurich 25hours Hotel is the most complex interior design project in my 20 years as a designer," says Häberli about his first overall design of a hotel, combining his well-known products with new ideas developed for and with 25hours. True to the 25hours motto "do you know one, do you know none", the new hotel is also intensively exploring its location. The timeless interior, which has been deliberately put together, welcomes its guests in a sophisticated Zurich style with a spacious hotel lobby, textile elegance and a homely atmosphere. 25hours through and through, but also with its own little wink and a dip in the paint jar. Alfredo Häberli, the designer of the hotel, also plays with creative ambiguities in his usual manner. Under the working title "the smile of my hometown", the hotel is peppered with artistic and graphic interventions that lead the guest out into the new hometown of 25hours and to the favourite places of the design team - beyond banks, chocolate and watches. It's worth exploring the well-kept secrets of the house: those who turn their heads, change their perspective, peer behind the curtains and sharpen their eyes as they walk through their room are surprised.

The Reception and connected lounge are the entry point and receiving area. A Kiosk for everything practical and beautiful. Things for the daily needs of hotel guests, but also handpicked 25hours cooperation partner products. The design products from the studio of Alfredo Häberli could prove to be habit forming. The impressive Staircase in the middle of the room is an opulent eye-catcher and stands for sophisticated Zurich. It characterizes the lobby in the style of traditional grand hotels as a place to see and be seen. In the Living Room, it's little library is a spot for kicking back and lounging – with a direct view of the Bar of course. It's impressively long and during the day the perfect meeting spot for a conversation and pleasant contact in the quarter. In the evening it's an after work hotspot with various late night programs before heading to a neighboring club. . The lobby combines masterful openness and sheltered niches. Alfredo Häberli's signature can be sensed in shapes, colors and textiles: comfortable, but elegant. Cultivated but also sometimes curious. "A place open for the world, but still protected. A place that was designed for versatility and flexibility," says the designer.

On the first floor 25hours Hotel Zurich West commands a Conference Area with its relaxed interpretation of a Zurich Guild Room as well as the KitchenClub. While the Zunftstube with fixed boarding setup is designed for meetings for up to 20 people, the Küchenclub (72qm) can be extended by one room (52qm). It is entirely dedicated to cooking courses and meetings in a culinary setting. Its heart is the kitchen block in cooperation with Bulthaup and Miele - complete with professional infrastructure and workbenches. Here you can sizzle under expert guidance.

126 Guest Rooms are anticipating alert spirits with tired bodies. Typical Alfredo Häberli: and it isn't just in the name, it is also carried out in caring detail. In the button mosaic on the tiles in the bathroom, silver, gold or platinum colored inlays cite their respective category. Thanks to the striking color spaces and the room's different locations in the building each has its own particular atmosphere. The colorful havens in the Medium and Large categories are available as classic double rooms or with bunk beds. A playful option for families or small groups of friends, especially because many of the rooms can be connected and expanded. The furnishings of the rooms, fabrics and selected accessories, all go back to Häberli designs and in some cases are already classics of the design world. Guests sit on Vitra chairs, sleep in Alias beds and put their toothbrushes in striped cups from the Origo series from Iittala.

A real looker in the Silver Category is the colorful carpeting, which completely covers the room with its warmth and comfort. Alfredo Häberli especially designed it for 25hours and produced it in collaboration with the renowned Tai Ping company. Little illustrations show up on the walls and create an original dialogue with the beings on the carpet. Stefanie Häberli-Bachmann, who is responsible for the complete graphic identity and the signage, says: "It is all based on the original sketches and the original signature of Alfredo Häberli." At 26m², the Large Category rooms are a little more generously cut and are facing away from the Business Plaza and toward Hard Turm Park. Hard-wood floors dominate the rooms and a more subtle color scheme offers an atmosphere of modern elegance. Rugs and built-in furniture like closets and desks were developed especially for 25hours and tailor-made for each room layout. The exclusive Häberli Suite has a generous view through its two windowed sides and offers its exposed free-standing bath tub. Its south-facing balcony overlooking the Business Plaza inspires a royal feeling. Perched up here, guests can actually wave down at their subjects from the balcony. At least they are privileged observers of a worthwhile view – all the way to the tips of the Alps.

Like a proud eagle's nest, the sauna is enthroned on the top floor above the busy Business Plaza. With an impressive city view of the track field in front of the main railway station, train spotting between sweating and relaxing is really fun in this urban playroom. The sauna cube placed freely in the room gives the impression of an island and is surrounded by small quiet zones. All in all, the area is characterised by unobtrusive natural materials, earthy, warm colours and simple furniture such as the Häberli loungers made by Alias.

NENI zurich west

A sophisticated hotel needs a world-class food concept. That may sound tiresome, pretentious and a little self-important, but far from it! The 25hours Hotel Zurich West serves food which has a clear-cut ethos and is proud to broadcast it to the world: happiness, diversity and intensity.

NENI – these four letters are a name as well as a pledge. The NENI on Naschmarkt in Vienna is devoted to the finest culinary pleasures and the nucleus of an out-of-this-world cooking experience. It was created by the Molcho family. Haya Molcho is a passionate host, chef, catering entrepreneur, restaurateur to the scene, cookery book author, wife of the legendary mime Samy Molcho and mother of four. She developed the concept for NENI together with her sons Nuriel, Elior and Ilan. The family now runs three establishments in Vienna. But her cooking philosophy extends far beyond the borders of Austria. Helped by 25hours, NENI has already conquered 2012 Zurich West, Berlin in 2014, Hamburg in 2016, Munich in 2017 and Cologne and Paris in 2018. ‘I see NENI as the most cosmopolitan soul food I have ever encountered,’ says 25hours CEO Christoph Hoffmann. The name NENI stands for the first letters in the names of the sons Nuriel, Elior, Nadiv and Ilan. Three of them work full-time at NENI, and Haya Molcho leaves no-one in doubt that the family business is close to their hearts. ‘I am all of this, and all of this is me,’ says the entrepreneur, pointing to her own childhood in Tel Aviv. It was there that she learned how to cook and to appreciate mealtimes as a communal ritual.

“I call it nomadic cuisine,” says 25hours CEO Christoph Hoffmann, adding: “Our restaurant concept thrives on a sensual patchwork and enriches the variety of food on offer throughout the whole neighbourhood in district 5 with its boldness and wit.” Hotel director Andri Bodmer loves the fact that the Viennese cult chef’s dynamic personality is reflected in the character of the Zurich hotel: “The lobby, bar and restaurant are all interconnected, creating a lively marketplace which fosters communication. It is the perfect place for Haya Molcho’s philosophy, which shows with NENI that eating is never a lonely, serious affair – it is passionate and sociable.”

In its own incredibly appealing way, NENI cultivates the art of dining together, sharing dishes and celebrating the pleasure of good food. There are hand-stitched baskets of pitta bread on the large round tables, which can comfortably seat as many friends as you can drum up – or which turn strangers into friends in the relaxed atmosphere of the restaurant. Diners casually top up their glasses from carafes and graze on titbits served in small bowls or on cake stands. The idea is for everyone to try a bit of everything. NENI is all about food without bells and whistles – simple cuisine with a few surprises in store; sometimes rustic but always with a refined twist. NENI is the perfect, sophisticated balance of sweet, sour, spicy, salty and bitter flavours in a single dish. It’s about fresh ingredients, lots of herbs and interesting combinations – not to mention authentic conviviality. In typical 25hours style, the service is casual, warm and personal: eating at NENI means feeling welcome as a member of the family.

come as you are.

From light lunches and fortifying snacks to long dinners with dessert, the menu shows what matters to Haya Molcho: curiosity. “I like experimenting and I do it a lot, combining flavours and improvising,” says the restaurateur. Her dishes are hallmarked by spices like ginger, Mediterranean herbs such as coriander, mint, rosemary and thyme, and Middle Eastern spices like cumin, saffron and cinnamon. Andri Bodmer redefines the world map: “When special ingredients flirt with gorgeous scents and unusual combinations meet intense flavours, the Middle East is transferred to the heart of Zurich.”

This statement also highlights the way in which the restaurant concept goes hand in hand with Alfredo Häberli’s design. Zurich’s cosmopolitan outlook is like a leitmotif which recurs throughout the hotel – including on diners’ plates and in their glasses. While designer Häberli forges a link between Zurich and the wider world with aesthetic details, chef Molcho combines home and wanderlust with taste sensations. “NENI brings the familiar and the new together; NENI is multicultural but never clichéd,” says Bruno Marti, Chief Brand Officer at 25hours, adding with a wink: “That’s why NENI and 25hours fit together like peas in a pod.”

interior & story

The 25hours Hotel Zürich West was developed with the team of Alfredo Häberli Design Development. The timeless interior, which has been specifically put together for this purpose, welcomes its guests in a sophisticated Zurich style with a spacious hotel lobby, textile elegance and a homely atmosphere. Alfredo Häberli as the designer of the hotel also surprises with ambiguities and added value in the various elements of the rooms. If you take a close look, you will notice how he subtly questions familiar values and thus elicits a smile from the guest.

Under the working title "the smile of my hometown", the house is peppered with artistic and graphic interventions. On the one hand, Häberli and 25hours make a personal declaration of love to their Zurich, but on the other hand, a three-dimensional city guide in the form of decorations, objects, and quotations also emerges for the guest. The interior becomes a mirror of the city. All the clues "are about an elegant form of humour," says Alfredo Häberli, with guests in mind who, like children, marvel at something with big eyes.

Häberli induces creative impulses and a walk through the hotel becomes an insider tour, always furnished with a playful twist. On the first floor things continue: Meetings take place here in the modern interpretation of a patriarchal Zurich guild room. The wall is decorated with traditional coats-of-arms, but in typical Häberli manner, with irony and hand-drawn caricatures. Beyond this, the topic of drawing receives its own appearance, because for Alfredo Häberli, sketching is crucial to designing. His personal sketch books make up the wall ensemble and reveal derivations and allow participation in the creative work in progress. Once just a scribble, now prestigious and well-known products, after a long period of development, are now ready to be touched and put to use in the hotel.

Like none of the other current 25hours Hotels, Zurich West has a strong design emphasis and displays clear authorship. Häberli's signature determines the main aesthetic and almost all of the details. "I wanted to design everything from A to Z," says Alfredo Häberli. With this he distanced himself considerably from the often negatively weighted term Design Hotel and continues: "I wanted to give the hotel a soul and not just a couple of pretty things to put in a building." The fact that over 60 products were developed and designed for 25hours Hotel Zurich West proves that he took his job seriously. This was also made especially possible thanks to the collaboration with well-known manufacturers. "The fact that over the years we have been able to win the trust of the most important international companies, isn't necessarily a given. Without their commitment, engagement and dedication the many products would not have been possible. That's why my big thanks goes to Alias, FSB, Hay, Kvadrat, Moroso and Tai Ping!" says Alfredo Häberli. Daniela Aeberli, responsible for interior architecture at Team Häberli, remembers the unusual start of the planning: "Because of the preexisting project direction, the whole interior concept was developed around the design of the bathroom."

come as you are.

For all of the designs, the quality of the facilities and the material are an important point. Every tiny detail was thought through and tested and discussed in the planning process. “Nothing was supposed to just be off the rack,” says Alfredo Häberli and with that gives a little perspective into the typical operating method of his design offices. It's usual to think on a small scale and to work on a door handle for more than a month. Three years to be exact. An example of the results can be held in guests hands with the door handles from FSB. Their design is simple, elegant and has lifeblood. Häberli admits: “I was really invested in the door handles. I really wanted the grips to be made of the chrome steel from the traditional manufacturer FSB from Brakel. Because the door handles are the first contact guests have to their hotel room.” Door handles have fascinated Häberli since his childhood and over the years he has collected a real treasure of memories of materials and shapes which inspired his design for FSB and allows them their old forged-metal vibe.

Another new Häberli Product is in the restaurant: The Jill Chair came onto market in 2011 and is the first collaboration between Vitra and Alfredo Häberli. Using the wooden figure BLØK for Berendsohn as an example, Alfredo Häberli shows how he creates a sympathetic and loving added value that gives the 25hours Hotel Zürich West a soul. BLØK stands for the idea of playful and refreshing non-verbal communication, reduced to the essentials. Made of wood from sustainably managed areas, BLØK meets the guest in the rooms and lounge area - in different moods and always good for an outburst of feeling. By combining the body with the head, countless expressions can be represented: Anyone who has fallen in love with Alfredo Häberli's BLØK can purchase a personal copy at the 25hours Kiosk in the lobby.

Häberli's dedication to the project with 25hours is very personally motivated. He grew up in Argentina in his parents' restaurant and his grandparents' hotel. “I still remember today what it smelled like there,” he says. In addition, he's also an internationally acclaimed designer who is on the road two or three days a week and has gotten to know a lot of hotel rooms. Which is why the aspiration to invent a new hotel room didn't come into discussion, but rather to newly revive it and to translate old standards into something more modern. As in the grand hotel tradition. Wild carpet patterns meet flowered wallpaper and exuberant curtains. Alfredo Häberli has found a contemporary and acutely appealing interpretation in color design. “I wanted to do something that the Swiss would never do,” explains Häberli and is convinced of his brave color combinations, which often reveal their aesthetic and harmony only after a second look. “Colors I perceive as the very first decoration possibility. It's more seldom that different designers and also a hotel operator have the same sense. That has made working together really fun.”

architecture & history

From industrial to trend quarter. The west always has been a synonym for departure. Also in Zurich, city movement is happening in the west – in district 5. In this area 25hours feels like it's in good hands as a dynamic urban hotel product. "This is the progressive Zurich, culturally open, multilayered with a lively view of the scene," says 25hours CEO Christoph Hoffmann. Zurich West spreads out over about 1.4 square kilometers (over 1/2 square mile) embedded in the valley floor between river Limmat and the train tracks. It is the most dynamic developing area of the city. Where once manufacturing was revolutionized, now art, design, restaurants, dance, culture, shopping and architecture are in focus. The factories have long since moved away and have left their areals as space for creativity. Zurich West has that big city feeling and connects worlds that couldn't be more different. What's established has become the foundation, and the new is what carries it forth and shapes it.

Anyone settling in Zurich West these days knows about its big name industrial heritage: One of the first factories that resettled in the industrial quarter was Escher Wyss in 1890. The development of waterwheels, turbines, machine tools and even steam ships made Escher Wyss one of the biggest machine factories in Switzerland. More big companies followed: like the Steinfels soap factory, Löwenbräu beer and Maag gears and electric motor factory. It smelled like a mix of soap, beer and refuse burning. The roughness of the industry is still palpable, but is connected to a thriving life. Old and new play together exceptionally: with a very creative day and a very lively night life. With the opening of the ship builders as cultural and work center of the Schauspielhaus (Theater) in 2000, the actual revival of the quarter began.

This is the location of the new home of the first 25hours Hotel in Zurich. The Hard Turm Park building project is situated on the former training space of the Zurich Grasshopper Club. As part of Hard Turm Park, 25hours Hotel Zurich West is in the Pfingstweidstrasse between the planned soccer stadium in the west and the Toni areal in the east. It creates a living unit with further services companies and restaurants. Visibly dynamic, highly useful and an urban quality, with life at and in the park is what distinguishes this spot. "We are really proud that our hotel is located there," says Hotel Director Andri Bodmer, "We see it as our duty to bring our own portion of the more colorful life into this neighborhood." It's as if the neighborhood was predestined for a young hotel idea, which offers contemporary concepts for curious and urban nomads.

For those who would like to go beyond the closest neighbors of 25hours Hotel Zurich West, can hop into tram line 4 right in front of the hotel. It connects directly to the Old Town area or the lake. Whether Museum für Gestaltung, main station or Opera House or one of the well-known Seebadis – everything is easy to reach with the one tram line. On the outskirts of town, the close-by autobahn A1 offers a comfortable connection via private transport to Basel, Bern and across to western Switzerland.
